There seems to be greater interest taken in the observance of Decoration Day each passing year. This is right. It is a lesson to the young that will be productive of good and will inculcate into their youthful minds that he who falls in the defense of his country is not forgotten. Even the flowers that are placed upon a fallen hero's resting place seem to thank the hand that placed them there. One by one the gallant soldiers of the late war are passing away, and each year new mounds in the silent cities of the dead receive their floral decoration. Those who remain bless those who offer this touching tribute to their dead comrades. Their time will soon come. The hand of Time is lying heavily on many of them, and it is a pleasant reflection to know when they shall have followed along the beaten path of those who have gone before that the same scenes will be enacted over their resting places each year. Never forget the soldier. His patriotism, his brave heart and ready gun gave us the liberty we enjoy, and made us the envied nation of the world. No tribute we can offer can recompense him for the life he gave in the cause of human liberty, but we can show our appreciation for his gallant service and convince those who are drifting toward the farther shore that they will never be forgotten, and that flowers of May will be strewn upon their graves as long as the starry banner for which they fought, waves over a free, liberty-loving people.

Coal mine horrors are of such frequent occurrence that they are becoming, in the language of Mark Twain, monotonous. There is no reasonable excuse in the world for such man-killing disasters. Miners, through the avariciousness of operators or incompetent management, are crowded into death traps that usher them into eternity by the hundreds, without a moment's warning. Mines are not properly ventilated, and but little attention is paid to the construction of places of escape in case of an accident. If these mines were ventilated as they should be explosions would be of rare occurrence, and the distressing circumstances that follow them would be unknown. Miners know when the mines become dangerous, and not unfrequently call attention to the fact, but whether they are safe or otherwise the poor fellows must delve in them and face the danger that surrounds them or quit work and starve. Between the two alternatives they choose the former, and are dashed to death in the dark and dreary underground works in the coal regions. Those who operate such mines should be compelled to provide every means of escape possible, and should also be forced to ventilate their properties properly.

The destruction of the Opera Comique Theater by fire in Paris was attended by a much greater loss of life than was at first reported. All was confusion, and the number of the victims will not be known until the bodies have been recovered. There is evidently a large number of bodies still in the ruins, judging from the terrible stench that emanates from them. This is now so great that it interferes very much with the prosecution of the search. It was horrible enough as first represented, but it is now probable that the sad story was not half told. Deodorizing fluids are now being thrown upon the ruins in order to make further search possible.

[PRESS DISPATCHES TO THE GAZETTE]

Decoration Day in New York.

New York, May 30. Reports to the Associated Press indicate that Decoration Day was generally observed throughout the East. Business was very generally suspended in this city to-day, and the streets were thronged at an early hour with dense crowds of people waiting, with patient expectation, the usual Decoration Day procession. Thousands of people are visiting the tomb of General Grant to do honor to the illustrious dead. The procession was composed of militia and veteran organizations, interspersed throughout with carriages containing maimed veterans, and was reviewed by Governor Sherman, Sheridan, Sickles and many other distinguished people. It is estimated that there were about 15,000 people in line. Early in the day Mrs. Grant stood at the tomb of the hero of Appomattox, and, entering, placed her personal token of flowers upon the casket within. Though the narrow space was filled with foliage, hers was the only offering of blooming flowers, all else heavy leaf and dark green. Mrs. Grant went away to her home so as not to be present when the public should come to the services. There were offerings from the Viceroy of China, his Minister here; from the Loyal Legion and many others. Twenty thousand people were present when the services began at 4. Grant Post, of Brooklyn, was in charge, assisted by Morgan and Hamilton Posts. Fifty colored ladies in uniform marched to the tomb with flowers. There were appropriate services according to the G. A. R. ritual.

Bandits Captured After a Struggle.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, May 31. Yesterday morning the Balsa cutoff above Santa Maria, on Mexican territory, and the refuge of desperate bandits, thieves and smugglers, was raided by forces from both sides of the river. Sheriff Brito, of this county, and Deputy Clausener, of Hidalgo, with about fifty rancheros and deputies, entered and drove out the bandits, who met with a warm reception on the other side from a detachment of the Third cavalry under command of Colonel Nieves Hernandez. A sharp fight ensued, in which Hernandez was wounded, and one of his men killed and another wounded. One bandit was killed and several wounded and a number captured, several of whom—well known murderers—were executed on the spot. A large amount of stolen stock was found and returned to its owners.

Kissane All Right.

HELENA, Ark., May 31. The prosecuting attorney for this district was questioned concerning the steps he had taken, and contemplated taking, in the apprehension of Billy Kissane. He said he had searched diligently for the whereabouts of witnesses and had learned that most of the material ones were dead. As for the criminal branch of his case, Kissane might rest easy on that score, as he did not believe anything could be done on the bond which was given to secure his appearance at the Phillips county court, the time having outlived the obligation of the bond. For six months, at least, no steps of any kind will be taken from this court against Kissane.

The Immortal Lincoln Not Forgotten.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 30.

Imposing memorial ceremonies were held here to-day. A great number of visitors from outside points attended the exercises at Lincoln's monument. Senator Cullom welcomed the visitors and veterans and delivered the eulogy upon the martyred President. He was followed by other speakers, after which a number of handsome floral tributes were placed on the tomb.

Train Robbers Arraigned.

AUSTIN, Texas, May 31. Six prisoners, arrested for robbing the train at McNeill's Station were arraigned yesterday. About 50 witnesses were present, none of whom could identify the prisoners. The express agent testified that $2,000 in cash and $2,800 in valuables, checks and drafts were taken. The case will be continued to-day.

Cyclone in Ohio.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 31. A special from Upper Sandusky, Ohio, reports that a cyclone passed over that place between 5 and 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon, doing great damage to trees, fences, etc. The spire of the Catholic church, 200 feet high, was blown over and the front of the church wrecked.

—Tommy Warner, the feather weight of Louisville, Ky., defeated Tommy Danforth, of New York, in Minneapolis last night.

WESTERN DISPATCHES

A Cold-Blooded Murder.

SALT LAKE, May 31. The inquest over the body of J. H. Burton, killed Sunday morning, developed little news. Martin claims that Burton looked through the window of the saloon and saw him counting money, and followed him. Burton's friends deny the disguise, and claim it a cold blooded murder. The coroner's verdict was that the shooting was malicious and premeditated. Martin used a 44-calibre British bulldog. Burton was a young man raised here and has many warm friends. Martin the barkeeper, said, when asked why he shot, that he did no more than any other man would have done under similar circumstances. Before the fatal shot, Martin fired in the air to frighten Burton away.

Thunder and Lightning.

TULARE, Cal., May 30. The most violent electrical storm ever known in this part of the State took place last night at about 10:30. Lightning began to flash and thunder rolled. The storm continued for about two hours. Flashes of lightning succeeded each other in such rapid succession that objects could be discerned miles away. The peals of thunder were so violent as to shake houses and rattle windows. Eastern people who claim to have witnessed many terrific storms admit that the storm of last night was one of the severest known. During the storm some rain fell.

Big Fire in Santa Cruz.

SANTA CRUZ, May 30. A fire broke out at 3 o'clock this afternoon in a Chinese wash-house on the Lower Plaza. The flames spread rapidly, and soon enveloped the buildings adjoining. To add to the danger, the water was partially turned off, and the Fire Department had great difficulty in feeling the engines. The people turned out to assist the department. The fire was under control in about an hour. The Swanton House, the Capilla Hotel, the Santa Cruz House, Swiss Hotel, two livery stables, two laundries and five stables were destroyed. The loss was $50,000; partially insured.

A Story Related.

LOS ANGELES, May 31. U. S. District Attorney J. Marion Brooks has returned from San Diego. He says that there is nothing in the story about an organized band of smugglers there, and that the complaint case of Moll was made out some months ago.

FOREIGN DISPATCHES

The Fisheries Question.

OTTAWA, May 30. In the Senate last evening Mr. Power moved that in his opinion of this House its duty to the Government of Canada was to see that any arrangement for the admission of United States fishermen to the territorial waters of Canada which may be entered into between the Governments of Great Britain and the United States by special provision, should be made; that fishermen of the latter country, when within the waters of Canada, shall be subjected to the laws and regulations by which Canadian fishermen are, for the time, governed. Mr. Abbott, leader of the Government side, said the Dominion Government would bring this matter before the Imperial authorities to see that the rights of Canada were maintained. The motion was unanimously adopted.

Strikers Resume Work.

LONDON, May 31. Grain porters at Avonmouth docks, who struck against the use of elevators only in unloading vessels, have gone back to work, employees having promised to use elevators only when they were insufficiently supplied with manual labor.

A Winery Struck by Lightning.

STOCKTON, May 31. Early this morning the winery of Henry Myers, with 18,000 gallons of wine, was destroyed by fire. Insurance agents attribute the cause to lightning.

FOURTH OF JULY.

A GRAND TIME PROMISED.

Partial Arrangements Made—A Balloon Ascension Probable—Committees Appointed—Officers of the Day, Etc.

The Managing Committee for the Fourth of July have received all the financial assurance they require, and are now marking out a plan of action for the celebration of our national anniversary. They are determined that the coming Fourth shall eclipse all of the celebrations that have taken place here, and in order to insure this they are paying particular attention to the appointment of sub-committees to look after the car of state, decorations, the ball in the evening, etc. The horrors will be a special feature, and will be composed of a long line of nondescripts, such as was customary in days gone by, when the old border ruffian element cut such a figure on Independence Day. In order to make the occasion even more attractive, the committee has decided to offer inducements to some San Francisco aeronaut to make an ascension after the ceremonies of the day are over. Reasonable inducements have been offered, and will, no doubt, be accepted, and the people, many of whom have never witnessed anything of the kind, will have an opportunity of seeing a human being dart off through space in a full-fledged balloon.

The following-named ladies have been appointed to arrange a car of state and a floral car, and are requested to meet at the Masonic hall on Thursday afternoon, June 23, at 2 o'clock: Mrs. Frank Bell, Mrs. C. C. Powning, Mrs. S. D. King, Mrs. C. S. Preble, Mrs. Jenni Perkins, Mrs. H. H. Beck, Mrs. Pierce Evans, Mrs. W. O. H. Martin, Mrs. J. Novacovich, Mrs. L. D. Folsom, Mrs. J. E. Jones, Mrs. R. S. Osburn, Mrs. N. P. Jacques, Mrs. A. Benson, Mrs. I. B. Marshall, Mrs. T. K. Hymers, Mrs. L. J. Flynn, Mrs. J. A. Fitzgerald, Mrs. W. R. Chamberlain, Mrs. J. B. Williams, Mrs. R. L. Fulton.

The ball committee is composed of the following gentlemen: H. P. Kraus, W. R. Chamberlain and J. O. Twiss; Music Committee, Frank Bell, Sol. Levy and A. A. Evans.

President of the day, Hon. S. D. King; orator, Hon. H. F. Bartine; poet, Hon. H. H. Hogan; Grand Marshal, Sheriff L. J. Flint; reader of poem, Miss Marie McIntosh; reader of Declaration of Independence, Hon. R. H. Lindsay; Chaplain, Rev. William Lucas.

General Committee: W. M. Chamberlain, President; A. A. Evans, Vice-President; Sol. Levy, Treasurer; H. P. Kraus, Frank Bell, A. Benson, J. O. Twiss, C. W. Booton, C. S. Preble.

F. E. HOLMES, Secretary.

NOT AN ENEMY.

The Man Who Refused to Contribute Speaks.

A rule of the GAZETTE has always been that its columns shall be open to any one who desires to place his side of any controversy before the public, whether he have a personal grievance or speaks for a class or for the general good. The gentlemen who have been criticised publicly for refusing to contribute to the committee for Decoration Day called this morning and stated his side of the story in the following words: "I was not asked to give anything by the committee or by any one in a way that would have secured a favorable response from any business man in Reno. I was sitting in the store when a man with whom I have never been friendly, and who shows a dislike for me, which is entirely mutual, came in and said brusquely: 'I am collecting for Decoration Day.' I answered in about as polite a manner as his, 'You won't collect anything from me.' He appeared pleased, and saying 'That settles it,' walked out. The proceeding looked to me like a preconcerted plan to place me in an unpleasant light before the public, and when I saw how it was worked up and circulated among the papers, I was convinced. I leave others to judge between men like myself who decline for any cause satisfactory to themselves to contribute of their private means, and those who suggest or endorse the suggestion of the boycott or the tar bucket as a punishment. I also leave others to judge whether one like myself, who have an honorable discharge from both the Army and the Navy, and who faced the enemy's fire at Charleston for ten months and elsewhere, whose father served for three years in the war of 1812, and who can show the sword his grandfather carried in the Revolutionary war, needs to be taught how to observe any holiday in his nation's history. Like hundreds of other soldiers of the rebellion, I have never seen fit to join the G. A. R., and if its local organizations are to be used as political clubs I certainly never shall."

Lew Johnson's Colored Combination.

Don't forget the entertainment to be given to-morrow evening at the Nevada Theater by Lew Johnson's colored minstrels. Says the Pasadena (Cal.) Weekly:

The company is composed of genuine colored artists of recognized ability, and they give a fine performance which, while being refined and strictly moral, is of a character to land the audience in an uproar of laughter and applause. Their songs and jokes are new and catchy and their dancing and specialty work is unsurpassable.

Not Runaways.

The boys, Victor and Albert Benson and Walter Timblin, spoken of in these columns on Saturday last as having run away from home during the previous evening, returned home at about dusk Saturday evening. It transpires that they did not run away, as the term is generally accepted, but rather went to Dog Valley, some 18 miles northwest of town, to see a party to whom they had sold an article. After seeing the party the youths, of their own accord, started home, and when within five miles of town a tempest overtook them and brought them in. The little fellows were very tired and as hungry as bears.

MEMORIAL DAY.

HOW IT WAS OBSERVED IN RENO.

More Flowers Than Were Ever Before Seen on One Occasion in These Parts—An Immense Procession—Eloquent Addresses.

Never was Memorial Day observed with more zeal and spirit than in Reno yesterday. When the overland train arrived from the west box after box of flowers for Mitchell Post, local societies and private individuals were unloaded, and it was remarked by Wells Fargo & Co's express agent that he never before saw so many of California's beauties arrive in Reno on one occasion. Before the appointed hour arrived carriages and other vehicles in large numbers, many of them from neighboring ranches, collected on Virginia and Second streets, and when the line of procession was formed it was undoubtedly the longest ever witnessed in a Nevada town. A pretty feature of the line was the large number of school children in wagons trimmed with bunting. At half past 1 o'clock the line moved northward on Virginia street to Commercial Row, west on Commercial Row to Sierra street, north on Sierra street to Hillside cemetery, where the first exercises of the day were held. After a dirge was played by the Reno brass band, Hon Wm. Webster, President of the day, addressed the assemblage as follows:

Soldiers of the Republic, Citizens and Friends—We are in this city of the dead on this beautiful day by permission of an overruling and beneficent Creator, for the purpose of showing by outward signs and solemn acts our devotion to the memory of our departed soldiers and friends; to show by speech and song our lasting appreciation of the brave deeds of departed heroes, and our abiding affection for departed loved ones. We have come to strew their graves with flowers on this national holiday, hallowed and sacred to the memory of every dead soldier who fought for his country.

Veteran soldiers of the Republic, I was permitted in my childhood to look upon aged, and I may say last, of the soldiers who fought the battles of the revolution, and I now hold and ever have held such permission as the greatest privilege of my life, and the memory thereof is amongst the dearest remembrances of my life. A generation yet unborn will tell of the last revolutionary soldiers; that their highest privilege in life was and their dearest, sweetest and most beautiful recollections are, that they had been permitted in childhood to behold in life but in very old age a Union soldier.

A national air was then sung by the choir, composed of the Misses E. Quaffie, Belle Harris, Jessie Finlayson, S. A. Harris, and Mrs. R. Ryland, and Robert Lindsay, F. B. Mercer, Guy Manning, C. M. Fassett, A. Harris and Prof. O. Ring. Rev. Wm. Lucas offered up a prayer and General N. P. Jaques, P. C., read an address. Hon. C. C. Powning, one of the orators of the day, delivered the following oration in an eloquent style:

Mr. President, Soldiers, Ladies and Gentlemen—How bright and joyful, and yet how solemn, this holiday seems. The God of Nature approves of the holy work in which we are engaged. The morning sun shines brighter than ever upon our brown Sierra hills and from the skies reflects the beauty of our green fields, watered by the crystal drops of the Truckee from Tahoe's lovely fountain, making Nature's velvet carpet softer than usual to tread. The budding trees and waving wild flowers are not unmindful of their part, and cheerfully add their sweetest blooms to adorn the bordering of the soul's testimonial to Loyalty and Valor. No other spot on this fair earth should take greater pride than this in grasping the inspiration of the occasion, for on Reno's baptismal font is the choicest name of a General who was one of the most gallant and heroic of those who laid down their lives for love of country. To me the very air seems laden with the choicest tokens of love and affection, and but a miniature of the scene transpiring in every spot where the American flag is devotedly loved and respected, sacred and sanctified for all time, for half-mast though it be, every movement of its stars and stripes unfolds to view and encircles mankind with the glorious precepts of Fraternity, Charity and Loyalty, the mottoes of the Grand Army of the Republic, to whom this day is lovingly, gratefully dedicated. The roses and lilies were never as sweet and beautiful as now, breathing incense to the memory of those whose spirits are on high, trusting that from the clouds the martyred braves are bending, serenely contemplating the perfumed tributes from their graves ascending, and offering visions of comfort and hope to their living comrades, pledging all anew to that union of States, one and inseparable, that makes the Republic secure.

Memory reluctantly recalls that certain States attempted to dissolve the Union because of their failure to secure the power to extend the slave system within the Union; that the right of a State to secede was denied; that the war was fought for the preservation of the Nation. The vision embraces the dastardly attack upon Fort Sumpter; of the hasty gathering of loyal men in the streets; of blaring trumpets and noisy drums as volunteers mustered to resent the insult; of the parting of fathers and mothers with their sons; of fond adieus and last greetings between wives and husbands, of sisters and brothers, of sweethearts and lovers; then comes the history of the steady, sturdy march, of the camp and bivouac, of the electrical shock of contending armies, the rattle of musketry, buzz of bullets, the roar of cannon and thunder of artillery, the shrieking shell—of torn and bleeding limbs, of the stretcher and all the agony of the hospital, of death in all its most horrible forms.

The last shot had been fired, the prison doors opened, the shackles of four million persons broken, and there came a great calm over the land. Just about a quarter of a century ago, and the country has prospered so wonderfully as to excite the admiration of every living being. It has lost Lincoln. It has lost Grant. It has lost Logan, and in losing him it misses the noble soldier who created Memorial Day, and taught the people that America should devote one day in the year to profound respect and love of its heroes. To that duty it has solemnly bound itself, and with each recurring anniversary the love of country grows stronger and stronger, until now the whole land is clasped in fraternal bonds. No language can express the debt we owe to those whose graves we decorate to-day, or to their comrades living, who assemble in this hallowed reunion. There is the embodiment of heroism superb, of loyalty supreme, of victory complete. So long as we are all brothers, citizens of a common country, with one flag, and one destiny, our first duty should be to profit by the patriotic lesson imparted, be ever grateful to those who have gone, solace, comfort and provide for those who have yet to go. Let every flower be laid tenderly on the green mounds, and the fragrance of every blossom be sweet incense to their memory forever.

After more music by the choir and brass band, during which time the work of decorating graves was done, the procession was again formed and moved to the Masonic cemetery, where like literary and musical exercises were rendered. Hon T. V. Julien delivered with expression the oration:

Soldiers of the Grand Army and Fellow-Citizens—I am impressed with a sense of impropriety in uttering words on this occasion.

If silence is ever golden, it must be here, beside the graves of those whose lives were more significant than words; whose patriotism, love of country and death was a poem, the music of which can never be sung.

With words we make promises, plight faith and praise virtue; yet promises may not be kept, plighted faith may be broken, and vaunted virtue a cunning mask for vice. We may not know one promise these silent heroes made; one word they may have spoken; but we do know that they summed up and perfected by one supreme act the highest virtue of men and citizens—for love of country they offered their lives a willing sacrifice.

That act solved all doubt and made immortal their patriotism and virtue. For the noblest man that lives there remains a conflict. He must still withstand the assaults of time and fortune; must still be assailed by temptations, before which lofty natures have fallen; but with these the contest was ended, the victory won, when death stamped on them the great seal of heroes, and ended a record which years can never blot.

Although many of them escaped death on the battle-field to meet it further on in the civil wars of life, the fact that when the Nation's life was in peril they went forth to battle and cheerfully welcomed death in defense of their country's flag, entitles them to equal honor with their equally brave though less fortunate comrades who fell on the field of battle.

I love to believe that no heroic sacrifice is ever lost; that the character of men are moulded and inspired by what their fathers have done; that treasured up in American souls are all the unconscious influences of the great Anglo-Saxon race from Agincourt to Banker Hill.

Could these men be silent in '61; these whose ancestors had felt the inspiration of battle on every field where civilization has fought for the last thousand years? Read the answer in the slabs that mark the soldiers resting on the fields of battle and in every church-yard through this broad land.

For nearly half a century preceding the civil war no spot in any of these States had been the scene of battle. Six and twenty years ago we were the most unwarlike nation on the face of the earth. Thirty millions of people had a standing army of less than ten thousand men.

The faith of our people in the stability and permanency of our institutions was like their faith in the sun and stars. Peace, liberty and personal security were blessings as common as sunshine and showers; and all sprang from a single source; from the principle proclaimed in the pilgrim covenant, that all men owe due obedience to the lawfully expressed will of the majority.

This is not one of the doctrines of our political system, it is the system itself; the political framework into which all other truths are set like stars in heaven; the incensing air; the breaths of the Nation's life.

Against this the whole force of the rebellion was thrown. Its overthrow would have brought such ruin as might follow, in the physical universe were the power of gravitation destroyed.

The Nation was summoned to arms by the highest motive that can inspire men. Two centuries of freedom had rendered our people unfit for despotism. As a flash of lightning, in a midnight tempest, reveals the abysmal horrors of the deep, so did the flash of the first gun reveal the awful abyss into which rebellion was ready to plunge us.

That disclosure, in one moment kindled the fire in twenty million of hearts, and caused thousands of loyal patriots to spring to arms in defense of their country's flag.

At first they fought for the Union alone, but soon a new element was added to the conflict; an element which filled the army and the nation with a cheerful, but intense religious enthusiasm. In lessons that could not be misunderstood, the Nation soon discovered that God had indissolubly linked with its own the destiny of an enslaved race; that their destiny and our Union was indeed one and inseparable. It was this conviction that made the soul of John Brown, the marching companion of our soldiers, and made them sing on their way to battle:

"In the beauties of the lilies,
Christ was born across the sea,
With a glory in his bosom that
Transfigured you and me;
As he died to make men holy
Let us die to make men free."

With such inspirations failure was impossible. That struggle consecrated, in some degree, every man who bore a worthy part.

Fortunate men! Your country lives because of your courage and valor. Your fame is placed where the breath of calumny can never reach it; where the mistakes of a weary life can never dim its brightness.

While this nation lives a grateful people shall adorn your graves with choicest flowers at each recurring year. For this have we met to-day; I will delay the coronation no longer.

It appeared as though nearly every grave in the two cemeteries was decorated with flowers, not only the fallen heroes being remembered but other loved ones who still live in memory.

BREVITIES.

Local and General News.
The thermometer yesterday reached 97 in the shade. This morning a cool breeze relieved the warm temperature.

Eighteen bars of Con. California and Virginia bullion, valued at about $73,000, went below on last night's overland train.

There will be a pigeon shooting match next Sunday at Steamboat Springs for a purse of $150. Music will be furnished those who desire to dance.

The first shipment of bullion from the Sprucecroft (Elko county) furnaces was made last week. There were 700 bars, weighing 35 tons, value not stated. There are about 60 miners employed in the camp.

The tract of 200 acres of land immediately northwest of town to be sowed in alfalfa by Messrs. Foley, Russell & Bradley, has been cleared of sagebrush, and two six-horse gang plows will be pressed into service in a day or two.

PERSONAL.

General R. M. Clarke and wife went below last evening.

F. A. Farnum, the popular manager of Steamboat Springs, is in town to-day.

Senator Jones passed through from California for Gold Hill yesterday morning.

E. B. Rail of Carson, was among the passengers for the Bay on last night's overland.

Fennor A. Angell, wife and family, of Hawthorne, are in town, stopping at the Lake house.

George R. Wells, President of the Mt. Cory Mining Company, passed through for San Francisco last night.

C. N. Shaw, President of the Jackson Mining Company, Eureka, passed through for San Francisco from New York on Sunday night's overland train.

Superintendent H. M. Yerlington, of the Virginia & Truckee railroad, accompanied by his wife, arrived in town last evening and took the overland for the Bay.

Arrested for Forgery.

C. P. Cross was arrested this morning by the management of the First National Bank on the charge of forgery. It appears that Cross, a carpenter in town, entered the bank and asked if he could draw $100 on a note for the amount with interest added and made payable in four months' time and signed by himself and Thomas Barnett. He was told that he could. The note was made out, and he started off towards Barnett's store, ostensibly to get that gentleman's signature. In a few moments he returned with the note, with Barnett's signature attached. The cashier of the bank recognized the signature to be a forgery, and Cross was arrested as stated.
